According to information received from the West, the major leagues have demanded absolute surrender.

Naturally the outlaws will scoff at the idea, give out interviews to the effect that organized baseball can go to blazes as far as they are concerned, and that before the winter is over twenty-five or more stars from the big circuits will be enrolled on the various Fed rosters.

The dope at present is that Weeghman of Chicago, and the Wards, of Brooklyn, are the only rich club owners willing to spend money to keep the Gilmore ship affoat.

The question now resolves itself to this.

The question now resolves itself to this. Will the Brooklyn and Chicago magnates continue to spend their coin? It's a problem hard to answer.

Foster Sanford, former Yale coach, at present in charge of football affairs at Rutgers College, was an interested spectator at the Georgetown-Washington and Jefferson game here Saturday.

Sanford was here to get a line on Washington and Jefferson as Rutgers plays this sam in New York next week. "I cannot remember in recent years of seeing a harder fought game than was on tap at Georgetown Saturday. That's the kind of football I like. Georgetown has a remarkably strong rush line, but its offense was weak."

Sanford had this to say about the game, and added that he hoped to make
